

The water level determines life, environmental quality and economic production in the Inner Niger Delta. Hence, local institutions monitor the daily change of the water level themselves.